

U.S. REFUSES PROPOSAL ON FRYE CLAIM

ANSING IN NOTE TO BERLIN TURNS DOWN OFFER OF PRIZE COURT SETTLEMENT.

WILSON KEEPS BUSY

Secretary of State Expected to Meet President at Cornish, N. H., for a Conference Shortly.

Washington, June 29.—In a note to Germany made public by the State Department in the case of the William P. Frye, the American vessel destroyed by the Prince Eltel Friedrich, this government maintains that Germany has violated a treaty obligation destroying the vessel and demands prompt payment from Germany.

The following direct statement of attitude of the United States is made by Secretary of State Lansing who signed the note:

"Is Breach of Treaty.

The real question between the two governments is what reparation must be made for a breach of treaty obligations and that is not a question which falls within the jurisdiction of the prize court.

Secretary of State Lansing points out to Germany that she previously admitted under the treaties of 1793 and 1829 her responsibility for the sinking of the Frye. He tells Germany that she now justifies the sinking under those two treaties and that because the treaties do not provide a way of paying indemnities the German Foreign Office has decided that the case must be referred to a prize court.

In reply to these two positions of the German Foreign office Lansing asserts that the treaties do not justify the sinking of the Frye and denies that the German prize court has any jurisdiction over the question of the amount of indemnity to be paid by imperial German Government on account of the admitted liability for the destruction of an American vessel on the high seas.

Not Prize Court Case.

The State Department declares that it will not be bound by any decision of the German prize court and reiterates that this "is a matter for adjustment by direct diplomatic discussion between the two governments."

Officials who have read the note say that it's the strongest document that has yet been sent across the water in the assertion of the rights of American commerce.

The statements of the present note are direct. They do not point blank the validity of the new contention of the German foreign office, and put the question on the high plane of violation or non-violation of a solemn treaty between the two governments.

Settlement Expected.

Some officials think that Germany, having exhausted her diplomatic ingenuity, which was to be expected, would be applied by her to the case, will now gracefully surrender to the American argument, return the case into the diplomatic channels and pay up.

Wilson Keeps Informed.

Cornish, N. H., June 29.—Wearied by his long automobile ride of yesterday, President Wilson did not leave his summer home this morning, but remained in his study, attended to his mail and official documents forwarded from Washington. He plans to go automobiling this afternoon.

The president kept in close touch with the state department, to learn of any possible development in the European and Mexican situation. It was said he knew nothing to warrant any public expression of opinion from him today.

Secretary Lansing was expected to arrive at Amherst, Mass., only a few hours from here today, and it was thought he might come over to confer with the president concerning the European and Mexican situations, it was said at the executive offices, that no meeting had been planned.

CHAMPION SOLVES
ROBBERY AT BROOK;
CULPRIT IN COURT

Edward H. Krahmer, Spring Brook, Confesses Taking Money From Hiding Place—Trial July 8.

Within thirty-six hours after the Brook saloon was burglarized on Saturday night, Chief of Police Peter Champion had arrested the thief and wrung from him a confession and restored the roll of money he took to Gus
Hell, proprietor of the place.

Edward Krahmer, a porter at the saloon took the money.

Krahmer was arraigned in Municipal court this morning before Judge Maxfield. He waived examination and was bound over for trial on July 6. Bail was fixed at $1,000 in order that the prisoner went to the county jail.

Krahmer, since Chief Champion first went over the trail followed by the thief, heard the stories of Mr.
Hell and of his bartenders and made other investigations, was under suspicion. Although he was at work yesterday morning at his accustomed duties and had expressed surprise at the stories he was told of the pinching of the saloon, he tried hard to keep up general appearances and assume an air of a party not guilty.

He was arrested shortly after noon yesterday. After a grilling at the city hall station, which at first were met with emphatic denials to every question that would implicate him in any manner with the deed, he gradually and under the evidence the chief had again given his confession.

The money he had taken was in a shirtwaist box in his room on Milwaukee street; the chief would be unable to find it. Would he (the chief) permit him (Krahmer) to go to his room and bring it to the city hall. Champion was taking no chances and wrung from Krahmer
the hiding place of the money.

Only one of the alleged amount of $130 said to have been taken by Mr.
Hell was discovered in the box.

Krahmer avers and swears that this was the entire amount he took, and that it was all that was concealed in Hell's "private bank" when he "drew" from it on Saturday night.

Krahmer's father, Robert Krahmer, lives at 1020 McKey boulevard, in Spring Brook.

Champion October or thereabouts
the prisoner had been in California with his wife and child. He returned to Janesville because of the serious illness of his mother. He had some money when he returned but began to mingle with some of the "fast" boys on the street and good-fellowship soon saw him broke. Since his roll depleted he has been working about town.

According to his story today he had taken the money to send to his wife in California which he is alleged had started legal proceedings concerning non-support for which he is reputed to have said that California's law would "make it warm for him" if the case reached a point where he would be returned to the coast to answer for the charge.

He attended at the four playgrounds to exceed expectations, over seven hundred children being on the grounds during the day. The Webster school headed the list with two hundred boys and girls, followed by the Adams with one hundred and seventy-five. The Washington and Jefferson were close behind with one hundred and fifty. If this decided increase continues throughout the summer a most successful year is certain.

Director Cox and his four assistants made a tour of inspection of the playgrounds.

FRENCH WOMEN RIOT VERSUS LIVING COST

Demonstrations in Some Cases Result
In Material Lessening in Price of Foods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, June 29.—An incipient riot of housewives and street vendors at the Central Markets recently has done more than the polemics of the press and menaces of politicians to advance the campaign against high meat prices.

What angered the woman was the seizure and destruction by sanitary inspectors of several tons of meat and poultry that had spoiled in storage while it had been sold the same day as received as required by the rules. It would have forced prices down to a reasonable figure. The woman insisted upon the re-establishment of the public sales that were suspended at the beginning of the war, charging the commission merchants with selling only as much of the meat consigned to them as could be disposed of without cutting prices. The public sales, or "sales by order," establish the official control market quotations. Since they have been suspended, the commission merchants have sold in their own hands, eliminating all influences of supply and demand.

A committee has now recommended the re-establishment of the sales by order. Under this system the commission merchant may fix a minimum price for meat or produce consigned to him. The order declares that price and anyone may buy at that figure if no one offers more; sometimes no offer is received and the commission merchant must lower his price.

Another reform proposed is the publication in the Municipal Bulletin each week of a list of the provisions and kinds of meat and poultry that are most abundant and advantageous for the economical housewives. The daily receipts are also to be published in tables alongside the estimated needs of the population.

ARCHBISHOP EXTOLS CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

Parochial Schools Supply Religious Element Needed in Education, Ireland Declares.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

St. Paul, June 29.—The value of Catholic schools for the instruction of Catholic youth was emphasized today by the Most Rev. Archbishop John Ireland in his address of welcome to the delegates at the first general session of the Catholic Educational Association's twelfth annual convention which is being held here.

Sessions were held in the new cathedral and were preceded by a special high mass celebrated by Bishop James McColdrick of Duluth. The remainder of the day was devoted to the meeting of the college, seminary and parish school departments and the superintendents of the deaf mute section.

Archbishop Ireland in his address said that nearly a million and a half pupils were receiving instruction in schools established in the United States by the Catholic church in the contention that religion should permeate and vivify the education of childhood and of youth. His education is not obtainable in the home as few parents are capable or willing to teach religion.

"As to the Sunday school," he said, "but one hour in the week is spent for religious instruction and an attempt to teach the Catholic faith short of long time and thorough drilling is a profitless beating of the air."

"The Catholic educational institutions of this country," the Archbishop continued, "number 6,000 parochial schools, 609 academies, colleges and a Catholic university at Washington. Religious instruction is being taught in these institutions," he said, "other themes are given their share of attention, so that in matters of secular knowledge the Catholic schools rank with the best institution of the state.

"The necessity for religious instruction," Archbishop Ireland said, "is seen today in the country at large outside of the Catholic church where among the masses of scattered and shattered threads of Christianity subsist, when it is all anything more than a memory or a mere wave of so-called human brotherhood or social uplift."

A THOUSAND CHILDREN TO ENJOY HEALTH OUTING.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Oakland, Cal., June 29.—With the idea of giving 1,000 children a home where they can come into their own—health and happiness—Mrs. Emma J. Mellette, philanthropist of Oakland, is preparing to purchase an immense ranch in this country where she will act as mother to the small brood of a thousand.

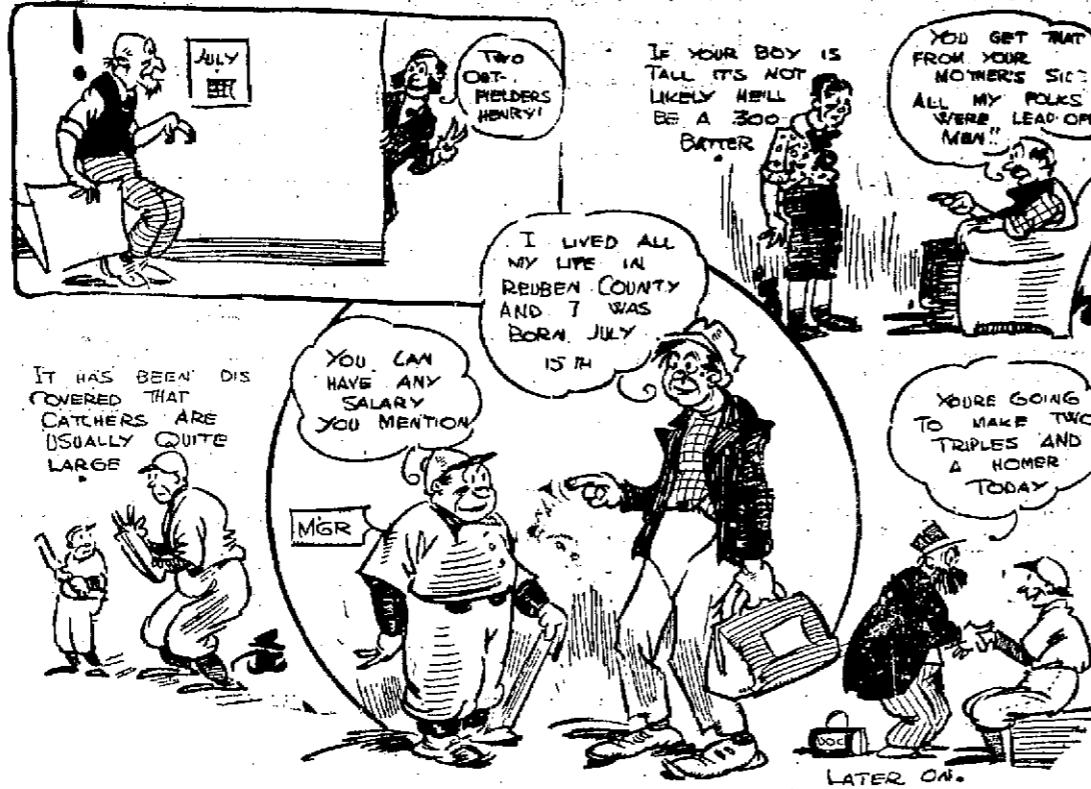

"I'm going to teach them self-reliance and self-support," said Mrs. Mellette today. "They will acquire a vast amount of knowledge of human nature by mingling together. I shall show them that work and play go hand in hand but that one is as important as the other."

REVIVALISTS TRIUMPH OVER BASEBALL PLAYERS FOR FIELD.

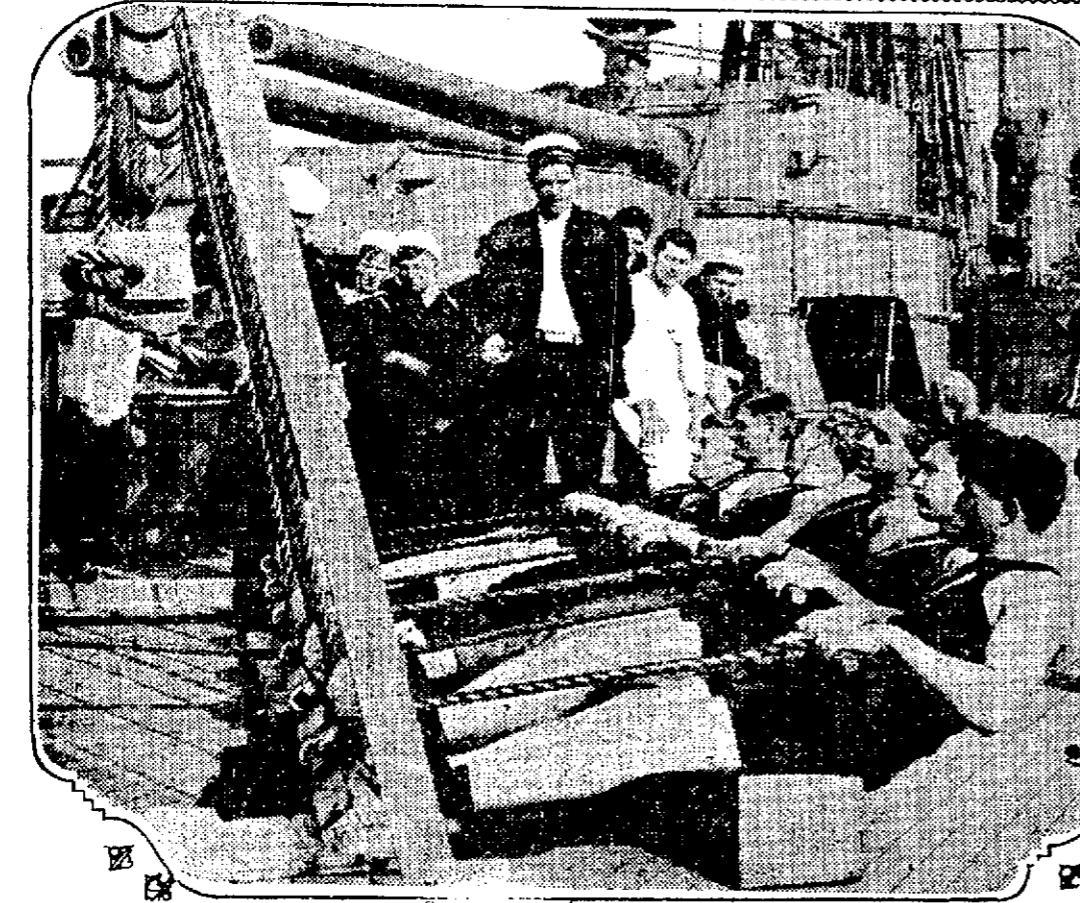

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Los Angeles, Cal., June 29.—Ball-players and revivalists clashed over possession of a baseball diamond in the suburbs and the revivalists triumphed. It happened thusly. The Arroyo Seco nine arrived at its park one morning to find a pulpit erected in the pitchers box and pews on the home plate. Their wild cries were no match for the oratory of the revivalists. Desperately they attempted to play a game, but the pitcher found it impossible to hurl curves while standing beside the preacher and the batsman had no room to swing his bat among the pews. The team, although leading the County League, surrendered and the revivalists still hold the field.

IF YOU WANT TO RAISE YOUR BOY TO BE A BASEBALL STAR
LET HIM BE BORN IN THE COUNTRY ON A BLAZING HOT DAY

If one is born in the country and during the warmer months of the year, he stands a better chance of becoming a "star" baseball player than if he is a city boy whose birthday is in the months from April to November, inclusive. A statistician has just found that of the 146 best major league players, 61 per cent were born in the country and 69 per cent in the warmer months.

Here's how the boys of the crew on board the battleship Wyoming keep in condition for the annual races between the crews of the various big battleships of Uncle Sam's fleet. In place of the regular collegiate rowing machines the jacks have improvised a system of weights and pulleys from which they receive the necessary training when not in their barges.

Bad Teeth Make Bad Boys

The president of the New York Juvenile association asserts that 91 per cent of the delinquent boys that come to the association to be looked after have bad teeth from which they suffer and that instead of worrying only about their morals the association worries about their teeth with the result that after two years of competent dentistry and daily use of the tooth brush 90 per cent of the boys are turned out as reformed.

ONE MORALS STANDARD FOR ALL MEN AND WOMEN AND BALLOT FOR LATTER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, June 29—"Propositions for Re-Representation" were presented here today in the Bureau of Sanitary Science of the American Institute of Homeopathy by Dr. Elizabeth Hamilton, Muncie of Brooklyn, N. Y. Dr. Muncie said her constituents were asked "upon tests extending over a quarter of a century, her plan included the demand for one standard of morals for men and women, and the ballot for women."

"Man has so miserably failed," she said, "that Washington Irving's 'Ringling Vine' will have to take the place of his Sturdy Oak—but not because the vine wants to make the change. No, every normal woman deserves the fellowship of a splendid, strong, noble man, but sin does not propose to put up with tobacco and whiskey-soaked diseased men any longer."

Dr. Muncie strongly advocated special instructors for training parents, compulsory reporting of certain sex cases, and sterilization of the unfit; and the prohibition of the liquor traffic, without which prostitution and white slavery could not exist."

CHIVALROUS BOARDER GETS SELF IN MESS

He Beat Landlady's Little Daughter on Her Orders and Neighbor Man Scares Out Complaint.

The screams of a little girl, angry citations and the sounds of something piling blows, grated unmercifully on the nerves of William J. Moore of 427 Fifth avenue yesterday. He proceeded to investigate. The commotion came from the barn at the rear of the residence of Mrs. Blanch Starr at No. 421.

Moore entered the building to see a man beating a little girl with the butt end of a heavy buggy whip in a room he thought unnecessary and at once proceeded to separate the two. He succeeded in right and then made haste to the city hall police station to swear out a complaint against the whipper. This proved to be Howard Guernsey, a boarder at Mrs. Starr's, whose ten-year-old daughter, he was licking.

Guernsey was taken to the police station and soon was before Judge Maxfield. Mrs. Starr, according to the boarder's version, had given him authority to beat the girl "because she did not mind" and Mrs. Starr substantiated the statement. Both were indignant to think that a rank outsider would come "butting in" to their affairs.

The case did not end with the appearance in court and on the charge of unmercifully beating a child Guernsey must appear tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Maxfield placed the attorney's vouching for his appearance Wednesday, he was released from custody.

ILLINOIS OPENED NEW LIQUOR FIGHT

Issue Idea May Be Taken Up In Other States—Reimburse Saloon Men For Investments Lost.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Springfield, Ill., June 29.—A new campaign issue between "wets" and "drys" in Illinois which may be used in other states, took life during the closing days of the Illinois legislature. It was embodied in a bill that proposed that the saloons which are put out of business in populous cities be compensated to the full value of their stocks and fixtures and compensated for the "good will" attached to their places of business.

The bill was introduced into the Illinois legislature by a committee of the assembly. It was defeated last night after a 4th of July session.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH EVA LEONARD CAMERON

THE SERVANT WHO WON'T SERVE.

If you had a servant who didn't even pretend to obey your orders, what would you do?

That may sound like too obvious a question to answer, and yet a great many of us tolerate a servant in our employ over whom we have little or no control.

We say "do this" and he refuses. We say "do that" and he rebels.

A neighbor of mine has been sick for five weeks. The cause of her illness—no, I won't say that, for an illness seldom has a single cause, but rather a long string of contributing causes—the final straw that laid her on her back was some extraordinary callisthenics at the wash tub.

She washed five pairs of blankets.

She is a small, delicate woman, absolutely untired for heavy work. It was the housecleaning season. She and a woman engaged to come and wash her blankets. At ten o'clock the woman had not appeared. That afternoon I saw my neighbor carrying in an armful of blankets from the line.

She was very pale. "Your woman came after all?" I asked. "No," she answered wearily. "She didn't. I washed them myself. Five pairs."

"What did you do it for?"

"Well, I wanted to get them off my mind. I couldn't bear to think of them lying around another day."

"Why think of them at all?"

"Oh, I couldn't help it."

She couldn't help it! She couldn't control her mind! And so to pacify that unruly servant she did something which she knew was a menace to her health.

The next day she had to go to bed.

Why She Had a Relapse.

That was five weeks ago. She hopes to get up next week if she doesn't have another relapse. She has had one brought on because she persisted in going over some accounts. Something else she wanted to get off her mind.

A friend came to ask me to go to town with her on a lovely morning last week. "I didn't believe I'd better," I said doubtfully. "There's four or five things I've promised myself to do this morning."

"Can't they wait?"

"Yes, but I wanted to get them off my mind."

"Put them off," she laughed. "That will do just as well."

Why Not Put Them Off?

She was right. A great many times we let our restless desire to get something out of our minds deprive us of opportunities for happiness, when if we only possessed the power to put them off we could go ahead and be happy.

The business mind who can put off his mind will last longer and get more out of life than he who hasn't this power to thrust the worries of the day from him at night.

The housemother who can put things off her mind until she gets ready to do them instead of letting them fret her while she is doing other work and overshadow her happiness when she should be enjoying herself, will be a more efficient worker, and a much greater comfort to herself and everyone who lives with her.

Household Hints.

FOURTH OF JULY LEMONADE.

The best lemonade is made with boiling water. Three lemons make a quart of lemonade.

Scrub and rinse lemons thoroughly. Chip off the thin outer skin of some of the lemons and steep for ten minutes in a little boiling water. Cut two thin slices from the center of each lemon and lay to one side.

Press juice from the lemons, using corrugated glass or lemon squeezer. Add to the juice sugar to make as sweet as desired, then pour on the proper amount of boiling water together with the strained water from the chipped yellow peel. Let stand until cold, then if not ready to use, stand in the icebox until needed.

Serve with slices of lemon, a couple to each glass.

Fourth of July lemonade takes on a more festive appearance by the addition of a little pink coloring matter, such as comes with some packages of gelatine, or a little currant, strawberry or red raspberry juice, slices of banana, strawberries cut in quarters, raspberries or pitted cherries.

REMOVES FRUIT STAINS.

To remove fruit stains from white goods, place two tablespoons of sulphur and one teaspoon of alcohol in a plate and ignite covering a funnel, small end up, over the blaze to concentrate the fumes. Pass stained goods back and forth over the funnel, allowing the fumes to come in contact with the part stained.

Rinse immediately, and launder in the usual way.

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

You know I told you I was determined to stop that Ellison woman's persecutions?" Olive looked thoughtfully at the fire.

"Have you worked out your plan?" Nell laid her work on her lap and prepared to listen.

"Just about," said Olive after a pause.

"Am I to help?" The tone showed interest, but no eagerness for the fray.

"Well, no, unless I have to hoist the signal of distress after I have played my last card."

"I telephoned to the house where she is staying."

"The place we saw her enter after the other night?" Nell leaned forward with her elbow on her knee and her chin in her hands.

"That very place," replied Olive. "She is still there."

"How did you get them? You did not know the name."

"Oh, that's easy. I called up information, said I must get a party rooming at that street and number and did not know the name. I got it all right."

LONDON GIRLS FIGHT FIRES WHILE MEN FIGHT ENEMY AT THE FRONT

In a London draper's shop the girls have taken the place of the men now in the army—who composed the fire brigade of the establishment. During the drills which take place daily they answer the call as quickly as did the male members and they are almost as capable as the men when it comes to handling the hose and nozzle in a stubborn blaze.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, In Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: The young people come of you for counsel. Will you also listen to an old woman? Here is my tale of woe:

We have a telephone in the house and are always talking to the neighbors. I've got one party, a girl of sixteen, who has made herself a nuisance. There is scarcely a day that she does not come in and call up some young man, making an appointment to meet him, or asking him to dinner home. If it was one particular fellow I should not care, but there are several. Some of them are boys of her own age, some considerably older. One of them whom I know personally is old enough to be her father. She never calls up girl friends. In fact, she doesn't seem to have any outside her relatives. I do not wish to be considered rude or selfish, but I have a young daughter and I feel this is a poor example to put before her. Now, do you think that a girl who cares anything about her reputation will do as she does? And will you tell me what to do under the circumstances? And accept the thanks of? MOTHER.

The hardest but most effectual thing would be to tell the girl's mother. If you yourself talked to the girl she would probably merely stop using your phone, but phone calls are while, if you tell her mother the girl may be far reaching and the girl made to see the mistake she is making. I do think that a girl can value her reputation and still do the things you have mentioned. She is not taught at home that it is wrong.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman and have two children. My husband has a very bad temper and never will change his ways. When he knows he is in the wrong, he has always tried to apologize, and as he wished me to, but it seems to please him. He seems to think enough of me, but somehow I feel disgraced and am losing all my love for him. When I go to bed at night I cannot sleep well for thinking of my former engagements and I wonder if I could have been happier with someone else. For instance, there is one of my old sweethearts (my first love) I dream of quite often and in almost all of the dreams I am running away with him. I do not know where he is and I haven't heard from him for about seven years, but I know where his home is. Please tell me what to do. Should I try to get in touch with him, or make the best of things as they are?

For the sake of your children, if for no other reason, you must forget your former love affairs and make the best of things as they are. Tell your husband how unhappy he makes you and that your thoughts have been to dwell on other men. The confession may make a big difference in the way he treats you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl eighteen years old and I have a cousin sixteen. We are bothered by two boys who want to go with us and take us to picture shows. We don't know them very well, especially the one that comes to see my cousin. How can we get rid of them without making them angry?

(2) How can you get a boy to leave if he stays too late at night? There was one who stayed until 11 o'clock. That is too late, isn't it, especially if he is tiresome?

(3) I have a friend away at college whom I am very fond. He promised to write to me, but has not done it. Would it be all right for me to write to him and ask what is the matter?

R. F.

(1) Tell them that you are busy. Why worry about them getting angry as long as you don't care for them?

(2) At 10 o'clock—say 10:30, which ever you prefer—tell him you must ask him to go, because it is your bedtime. I think 11 o'clock is too late. Even the most interesting boy gets tiresome if he stays too long.

(3) It would not be all right to write to him. If he cares to correspond he will write to you.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

"Get a club for the other boarder, and keep enough money yourself for your expenses" was the rejoinder of Judge Hale in refusing a divorce.

HEAD WOUNDS PREDOMINATE, SUGGESTS STEEL SKULLCAP.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, June 29.—It is estimated, according to the latest figures, that 13 per cent of the men hit since the inauguration of the war of trenches are wounded in the head. Doctors Dentu and Deurigne recommend the use of metallic skull caps as a protection. Of 55 soldiers wounded in the head created by Doctor Deurigne, 42 had no such protection, and 23 of these suffered from fractures and 19 from scalp wounds. The remaining 13 were provided with metallic skull caps and of these were only slightly wounded. Doctor Deurigne declares that officers and surgeons are favorable to this protection and if the soldiers are hostile it is because only two or three sizes are made and in most cases fit badly.

Jasper Grierson fanned away the nimbus of cigar smoke with which he had surrounded himself and stared gloomily at her through the rift.

"Who said anything about hating?" he derided. "That's a fool woman's notion. This is business, and there ain't any such thing as hate in business."

"I hate it!" she said coldly. Then she dragged the talk back to the channel it was leaving. "I ought to have broken in sooner; I might have known what you would do. You are responsible for this labor trouble they are having over at the iron works. Don't bother to deny it; I know. That was your 'heeler'—the man you had here when I came. You don't play fair with many people; don't you think you'd better make an exception of me?"

Grierson was mouthing his cigar again and the smoky nimbus was thickening to its customary density when he said: "You're nothing but a spoiled baby, Madge. If you cry for the moon you'd think you ought to have it. I've said my say, and that's all there is to it. Trot along home and tend to your tea parties; that's your part of the game. I can play my hand alone."

She slipped out of the window-seat and crossed the room quickly to stand before him.

"I'll go when you have answered one question," she said, the suppressed passions finding their way into her voice. "I've asked for bread and you've given me a stone. I've said 'please' to you, and you slapped me for it. Do you think you can afford to have me over to the other side?"

"I don't know what you're driving at, now," was the even-toned rejoinder. "Don't you? Then I'll tell you. You have been pinching this town for the lion's share ever since we came here—shaking it down as you used to shake down the—" she broke off short, and again the indomitable will got the better of the seething passions. "We'll let the by-gones go and come down to the present. What if some of the things you are doing here and now would get into print?"

"For instance?" he suggested, when she paused.

The daughter who had asked for bread and had been given a stone put her face in her hands and moved toward the door. But at the last moment she turned again like a spiteful little tiger-ay at bay.

"You think I can't prove it? That is where you fall down. I can convince people if I choose to try. And that isn't all: I can tell them how you have planned to sell Mr. Galbraith a tract of 'virgin' pine that has been culled over for the best timber at least three times in the past five years!"

Jasper Grierson started from his chair and made a quick clutch into smoky space. "Madge—you, little devil!" he gritted.

But the grasping hands closed upon nothing and the sound of the closing door was his only answer.

When she had unhitched the little Morgan and had driven away from the bank, Miss Grierson drove quickly to the Winnebago house and drew up at the carriage step. A bell boy ran out to the wheel of the phaeton. Two minutes after the boy's disappearance, Broffin came out and touched his hat to the trim little person in the basket seat.

"You are Mr. Matthew Broffin of the Colburne Detective agency, are you not?" she asked, sweetly.

Broffin took the privilege of the accused and lied promptly.

"Not that anybody ever heard of, I reckon," he denied, matching the smile in the laughing eyes.

She laughed softly. "You see, it resolves itself into a question of veracity—between you and Mr. Andrew Galbraith. You say you are not, and he says you are. Which am I to believe?"

Broffin did some pretty swift thinking. There had been times when he had fancied that Miss Grierson, rather than Miss Farnham, might be the key to his problem. There was one chance in a thousand that she might inadvertently put his key into his hands if he should play his cards skillfully, and he took the chance.

"You can call it a mistake of mine, if you like," he yielded; and she returned. "Let's go up to the Winnebago."

nodded brightly.

"That is better; now we can go on comfortably. Are you too busy to take a little commission from me?"

"Maybe not. What is it?" He was looking for a trap, and would not commit himself too broadly.

"There are two things that I wish to know definitely. Of course, you have heard about the accident on the lake? Mr. Galbraith is at our house, and he is very ill—out of his head most of the time. He is continually trying to tell someone whom he calls 'MacFarland' to be careful. Do you know anyone of that name?"

Again Broffin thought quickly. If he should tell the plain truth. . . . "Tell me one thing, Miss Grierson," he said bluntly. "Am I doin' business with you, or with your father?"

"Most emphatically, with me, Mr. Broffin."

"All right; everything goes, then. Mr. Galbraith has been figurin' on buying some pine lands up north, and he has sent MacFarland up to Duluth to verify the boundary records on the county survey."

"I thought so," she affirmed. And then: "The records are all right, Mr. Broffin; but the lands which Mr. MacFarland will be shown will not be the lands which Mr. Galbraith is talking of buying. I want evidence of this—in black and white. Can you telegraph to someone the glimpse he was made to realize that it is the coward who kills; and kills because he is a coward."

He had climbed the steps of the broad veranda when he heard his name called softly from the depths of one of the great wicker lounging chairs half hidden in the veranda shadows. In a moment he had plucked another of the chairs for himself, dropping into it wearily.

"I saw you at the gate," she said. "The men are still holding out?"

"We are holding out. The plant is closed, and it will stay closed until we can get another force of workers."

"There will be lots of suffering," she ventured.

"It's no use," he said, answering her thought. "There is nothing in me to appeal to."

"There was yesterday, or the day before," she suggested.

"Perhaps. But yesterday was yesterday, and today is today. As I told Raymer a little while ago, I've changed my mind."

"No," she denied, "you only think you have. But you didn't come here to tell me that?"

"No; I came to ask a single question. How is Mr. Galbraith?"

"He is a very sick man."

"You mean that there is a chance that he may not recover?"

"More than a chance, I'm afraid."

After a moment of silence Grierson said: "I did my best; you know I did my best?"

Her answer puzzled him a little. "I could almost find it in my heart to hate you if you hadn't."

Silence again, broken only by the whispering of the summer night breeze rustling the leaves of the lawn oaks and the lapping of tiny waves on the lake beach. At the end of it, Grierson got up and groped for his hat.

"It must be like the other; in black and white," she stipulated. "And you needn't say it. Look for a red-faced man with stiff mustaches and a big make-believe diamond in his shirt-front, and make him tell you."

Miss Grierson was opening her purse and she passed a yellow-backed banknote to her newest confidante.

"Your retainer," she explained.

Broffin's grin this time was wholly of appreciation.

"You're the right kind—the kind that leads trumps all the while, Miss Grierson," he told her. Then he did the manly thing. "I'll go into this, just as you say—what? But it's only fair to warn you that it may turn up some things that'll freeze you. You know that old saying 'about sleepin' dogs'?"

Miss Grierson was gathering the reins over the little Morgan's back and her black eyes snapped.

"I'm going home," he said. "It has been a pretty strenuous day, and there is another one coming. But before I go I want you to promise me one thing. Will you let me know immediately?"

"I'm going home," he said. "It has been a pretty strenuous day, and there is another one coming. But before I go I want you to promise me one thing. Will you let me know immediately?"

Maintain Rest Room in Small Iowa Town

DR. AND MRS. E. E. LOOMIS FIND COMFORT STATION LOCATED IN LIBRARY BUILDING.

IS WELL PATRONIZED

Eighteen Thousand Persons Visit Room in Six Months According to Matron, a Native of Rock County.

(By Mrs. Abbie Helm.)

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis have just returned from an automobile trip which took them as far west as Decorah, Iowa. From there they made little side trips, sometimes by rail and sometimes by auto. At a small town called Esterville, about 23 miles from Spirit Lake, they were interested to discover that a public rest room was maintained in the basement of the Carnegie Library building. The town is a nice little place of about 5,000 inhabitants, built around a square park. It has a court house and other public buildings fronting the square and also many business houses. Just off the main street stood the library building with a basement entrance into the rest room.

Dr. Loomis expressed himself at one time as being in favor of having a rest room in the library, but as he looked into the matter he decided that in our own town, at least, that was the ideal location for it. For that reason he, as well as Mrs. Loomis, were very much interested in the equipment and maintenance of the project. They were surprised to find that the matron was a Wisconsin woman and born at Shippore. She and her daughter care for the room and have a corner screened off on one side, equipped with two sewing machines, where they employed their spare time in sewing. They were paid by the Commercial club of the town. The room was about twenty feet square, with large windows nicely curtained, containing pots of growing plants. The room was maintained under direction of the eight or ten women's club of the town, and some of them held their meetings there in the evening. As they had no domestic science course in the schools, a young girls' sewing club had been organized, and held evening meetings in the room. They were soon to have a picnic given to them and on that occasion were to wear the actions made in the class.

The room was also used as a center for the work of the Associated Charities. Clothing and material was brought here and when need arose, the ladies turned to under direction of a chairman and made over the garments. The sewing machines greatly assisted this undertaking, and it was stated that the children of 38 families were decently clothed for school and Sunday school by this means during the last year.

The equipment of the room was secured entirely by donation and the matron said they could have furnished a dozen rooms with what was offered them. Mr. Loomis was a little curious as to what constituted an outfit for such a room, so while waiting, jotted down the following list: Large square writing table with pens, ink, and paper; two small side tables; one large table at end of room; four hall rack, suitable for bundles or packages; two rattan lounges; two large rugs; child's crib and baby buggy; organ; waste basket; ten rocking chairs; six easy chairs; large mirror; pictures; clock; book rack; magazine; two sewing machines; behind screen; On the wall hung a framed notice.

stating that it was maintained as an "Own Public Welfare Room," that the woman in charge would give advice and help to inexperienced girls. There was also a warning to girls not to wander on the streets at night or to linger on the railroad platform longer than necessary. They were told to consult the policeman on duty at railroad stations as to where to go in a town. In Iowa it is one of the duties that belongs to the police department to meet all trains in its towns and villages.

Dr. Loomis was pleased to note the attendance. In the room, as there were many, were sitting about, resting or resting. The matron informed him that she had kept track of visitors and there had been about 18,000 since the first of January.

Dr. and Mrs. Loomis expressed themselves very emphatically as to the need of a public rest room in Janesville, not for no other purpose than to accommodate automobile drivers, they believed, it will worth while. But as Mr. Loomis says, it has been so popular wherever one has been established and it seems to fill so many wants that one wonders how a town can afford to get along without it.

JANESVILLE MEN LEAVE FOR LAKE GENEVA FOR THE TRAINING SCHOOL

Among the five hundred men from Y. M. C. A. all over the country, who gather at Lake Geneva every year to attend the Training School for Physical Directors, there will be three men from Janesville. Although two of the three have been away from the city for some time, they are well remembered here. Mr. C. E. Leahy, physical director at the Y. M. C. A., together with F. M. Yordy, former director at the local "Y" and F. D. Harvick, a former Janesville man, leave for the conference tomorrow.

The school will be in session for two weeks at a time. The school for physical directors will last for two terms, making four weeks in all. Here the instructors are instructed. Descending from their dignity, they become the students, while those who have had more years of experience and greater opportunities for observance, enlighten them upon different subjects.

The school in itself lasts during the entire summer. There will be a school for the county secretaries later in the season, at which Mr. C. A. Markham will probably be present; then there are schools for railroad workers, and all together schools for fifteen different branches, ending in the latter part of July with a school for high school students. Commencement is held on the 22nd of July. There will be many prominent men present at the schools, among whom are Dr. A. G. Stiner, General Secretary at Detroit; Y. M. C. A.; Dr. George L. Robinson of the McCormick Theological seminary; Winfield S. Hall of the Northwestern Medical college; Professor H. H. Horne, Ph. D., of New York University, and Dr. John Brown of New York.

On the wall hung a framed notice

VISITS STUDENTS IN ACRE CORN CONTEST

Allen B. West, County Advisor, Reports on First Week's Visits With His Students and Other Growers.

Rock county's new advisor, Allen B. West, who is also director of the acre and ten-acre corn contests, conducted this year by the Janesville Commercial club, experienced a siege of work during the past week, in visiting the various agricultural students and other corn growers, in the interests of the contest work and along other lines. He also visited many elder farmers, inspecting their alfalfa and other products.

The idea of Mr. West last week was to use up the six days, by means of his motorcycle, in checking up on the agricultural students and giving them some credit in return.

As many of the students are entered in the acre corn contest, his visit was of double value to them as well as saving him much time.

Many of the corn growers were urged to use the shallow cultivation method earlier in the year, some of them still clinging to the deep cultivating method. The county advisor found one out of six alfalfa farms was really good. The trouble he found was that the soil had not been tested correctly and some had tested at all. Where many farmers formerly objected to a county advisor, they are now asking him to call again and offer his suggestions and pointers.

Mr. West will, after the Janesville fair, visit every corn contestant to write or notify West instead of Bewick as was mentioned before.

A twenty-five dollar canning outfit, being offered by a Badger factory for the best display of canned tomatoes. This should be an incentive to the girl to enter the state fair contests.

MAGNOLIA CENTER

Magnolia Center, June 28.—Mrs. G. H. Howard and Mrs. Dawson Maylor do not improve as fast as their many friends wish them to.

A large crowd attended the social at the hall Tuesday evening.

YOUNGSTERS RETURN FROM DELAVAN TRIP

After Two Days Real Sport, Fishing, Swimming and Baseball Games.

Fifteen boys, accompanied by Mr. J. C. Kline and physical director C. E. Leahy returned Saturday afternoon from a two day camping trip to Delavan Lake. The boys were met at the station Friday noon by Mr. Kline with a large stage coach and were taken to the assembly grounds, at the lake, where a large and spacious cottage had been prepared for them. There were plenty of room and a large dining hall in the bungalow.

Before they had even settled themselves the boys were in the water and enjoying a cool swim. After the bathing, they partook of a light lunch which they had brought with them.

After this the Y. M. C. A. junior nine quickly organized themselves and prepared to throw back the challenge made by the Trinity church choir boys of Madison, who were camping near them. The game was a hard battle in which the choir boys and the team on the "Y" team to the tune of 9 to 8. This warranted another swim, and after cooling off the boys plunged into the lake.

A big supper awaited the youngsters when they had dressed from their swim dip and they were well in need of sustenance at the time. After the bountiful meal the boys took boats and rowed around the lake until it was time to accept the invitations of the choir boys to attend a marshmallow roast at their camp.

Everyone retired shortly after nine o'clock and all were ready for a good night's sleep.

The next day started at four o'clock for breakfast and they were all out on the lake at their early hour, fishing and rowing. While breakfast was being prepared, the boys took their final plunge and then ate a hearty meal.

After this they washed the dishes and packed up the things for departure.

Nor did the excursion end when they arrived home at about one o'clock, for they were then taken to the fair grounds where the witnessed the Y. M. C. A. ride over the Parker Pen company. The boys took in Beloit as they passed through there, having an hour stop over both on their way to and from Delavan.

CORNELL EIGHT WINS PUSHED BY STANFORD

Westerners, Although Beaten by Half Length, Are Real Heroes of Hudson Regatta

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—Last Stanford university eight proved the darkest of dark horses here yesterday in the inter-collegiate rowing regatta and although crossing the line half a length behind the sturdy Cornell crew, stamped themselves into the annals of Hudson river rowing history as one of the gamiest crews ever turned out in the west.

Stanford finished first with a time of 20:36 2-5, while the Californians were 20:37 5, and the 1:25 behind. Syracuse was third, Columbia fourth and Pennsylvania last.

Breaking all the ethics of crew rowing, the westerners were adjudged tallenders following their lag at the first half mile after a spurt which took them far in the lead at the first quarter. The Stanford crew was playing a game, however, and the will do whatever the rules has made them the heroes of the day.

The results of the other two events of the afternoon were as follows:

Junior varsity eight—Cornell 10:00 1-5; Pennsylvania 10:05; Columbia, 10:07 3-5; Iold record 11:13 2.

Freshman eight-eared—Syracuse, 9:29 3-5; Cornell, 9:45; Columbia, 9:47 3-6; Pennsylvania 10:01 2-5.

Jim Thorpe will always be known to baseball as a "newspaper major leaguer." Thorpe failed to develop under McGraw of the Giants, and was shifted to Jersey City of the International league. For a while Thorpe went well, but after the swing around the circuit he was through. The pitchers discovered his weakness and curve-balled him to death. Now he's on the bench.

MORRIS MILLER

Dei Gainer appears to be in better physical condition this year than he ever was during his stay with the Detroit club. The former Tiger is playing splendid ball for the Sox, being able to cover both first base and the outfield.

Cleveland and Chicago form a sad contrast in the boxing game. Mayor Baker is in a position to permit boxing, but frankly states he doesn't like the game. Chicago's mayor isn't in a position to allow it, but announces himself as a strong admirer of the manly art.

The Gunboat Smith-Charlie Weinhert bout set for July 1, should be a good, fast scrap. The Gunboat says his injured hand is as strong as ever and promises to surprise the people who thought he "was going back." And Weinhert, who once floored Jim Coffey, has been putting on weight. Weinhert is only nineteen, weighs 180 pounds, and is six feet three inches tall, and promises to develop into one of the fastest and cleverest heavies in the game.

One of the new boy friends of Leach Cross pulls this one on the dentist-boxer:

"I was watching Leach's car one night when his brother Dave was fighting in the Fairmont A. C., New York. A cop came along and asked 'Why are those lights out?' and I replied, 'It's Leach Cross' car and he's saving money.'

And after six hours Leach came down and handed me a dime."

It must be gratifying to the lovers of baseball in Toledo to know that the town is very apt to be put back on the baseball map. Toledo has not had baseball for more than a year, though the town has one of the prettiest plants in the country. The trouble with Toledo has been that it would not support a club, which was owned by a few living in its rival city—Cleveland. But arrangements are now being made whereby the club will be placed in the control of Toledo people, and there seems to be a revival of interest there. The fact that Presidents Johnson and Tener have both expressed a desire to help transact the Cleveland club to that city is pretty sure to bring this about.

Only a dozen American league swatters are getting their hits frequently enough to keep up the exclusive class above the .300 mark. Of course, Ty Cobb continues to lead, though he is still below the .400 point.

Hans Wagner made the hundredth home run of his career a few days ago at Pittsburgh. His first home run was made in Louisville in 1897, and he has piled four-baggers on all the ballparks since. Had he been playing all these years at Philadelphia or Boston, he'd probably, with the short fences to help him, have had from 200 to 300 by this time. The old war-horse has made considerably more than 3,000 hits during his baseball career.

Hughie Jennings has announced that he will work Bill Steen, former Indian, regularly in the box, from this out, replacing Bernie Board, who starred in early season games. Hereafter the Tiger chief will work Dauss, Dubuc, Steen and Coveleskie in the order named.

Quigley called a game between the Giants and Braves in Boston when, according to a magnate who was there, there was an hour more of daylight. Now he is criticized for calling the Red-Dodgers game in the fourteenth inning when there was light enough for another round or so.

STATE WILL RETURN COUNTIES HUGE SUM

Sum of $385,000 Will Return to Original Sections Providing Cunningham Law Is Passed.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, June 29.—With the close of the fiscal year, June 20, the state will have licensed approximately 77,000 automobiles, 7,380 motorcycles and 1,528 trucks. Of these automobiles about 59,000 were licensed during the six months of 1915, now closing, as compared with 63,150 during the whole of the preceding year. The total revenues from these sources from the fiscal year will be about $420,000.

Under the Cunningham bill now pending, which received favorable report from the finance committee and which has fair chance of enactment, the counties will receive a dollar revenue except about 8 per cent of administration covering cost of plates, postage and clerk hire. This means that $385,000 will be returned to counties for highway improvements. Under the present law only 85 per cent of the revenue goes to the counties.

The apportionment of the money to be returned to the counties will be made by the State Board of Equalization on a basis of 69,000 cars licensed this year.

PUNISH FRAUDULENT COLLECTORS MONEY VIA TELEGRAPH USE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, June 28.—It is announced here that vigorous steps are to be taken by telegraph officials to assist public prosecutors to stamp out the fraudulent use of telegraph lines in securing money from them.

In the case of R. E. Miles, a United States army man, who was arrested some time ago for such a fraud, the Western Union Telegraph company has secured his conviction and sentence of four years in prison.

On December 18, 1914, Miles sent a telegram from San Francisco, addressed to Pierre P. Ferry, Seattle, Wash., stating that he had just arrived on the transport "Sherman" and was "broke" and asking Ferry to wire him some money for expenses. To this message he signed the name "Herbert," intending that the addresser should think that the message was sent by one Herbert H. Foy, who had been a comrade of Miles in the Philippines. Both Miles and Ferry were enlisted men. On December 17, Miles sent a similar message to Ferry, asking specifically for $200 more, to "Herbert H. Foy" at San Francisco, and Miles, with the aid of letters and communications which he had stolen from the real Foy, secured both sums.

FEW BELGIAN CITIES TO GET GERMAN NAMES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Brussels, June 29.—The question of whether or not to change the names of the principal cities of Belgium from the French to the German has been settled by the foreign general. With but few exceptions the cities, and all of the towns, will officially keep their present names.

The exceptions include Malines, which is to become Mechelen; Lier to Lier; Tongres to Tongern; Rourles to Rouselare; Courtoil to Kortryk; Alost to Aalst; and Ypres to Ypern. Postal cancellations will accordingly be changed to fit the changes order ed.

WAR FAILS TO STOP PETTY FRENCH GRAFT.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Paris, June 29.—The refining influence of war, seen in so many other directions, has not entirely overcome the little frauds of Parisian commerce. During February 48 cases of cheating in weights were detected by the fraud suppression service of the prefecture of police. Of 365 samples of flour analyzed, 26 per cent were found to be watered. Of 100 samples of wine 32 per cent were falsified. Of 250 samples of various other provisions 18 per cent were adulterated. A ton of falsified merchandise was seized.

AMERICAN MISSIONARIES SWAYED CHINESE POWERS IN RIGHTEOUSNESS FIGHT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Peking, June 29.—American missionaries and others have again become prominent in Peking over a matter which promised seriously to affect not only their work but the principles for which they stood. The case was that of a Chinese general and two minor officers who were removed from their positions because they refused to take an oath, according to the new regulations of the government, before the images in the Temple dedicated to certain war heroes. The matter was brought by a certain American to the attention of President Yuan Shikai, and it was pointed out that this was by no means the doctrine of religious liberty in which the majority of Chinese Republic had pledged themselves. The argument in reply declared that the regulations Chinese citizens, but the number of Christians being so comparatively few, were drafted with no idea of transgressing the rights and beliefs of any small throughout the nation, no special consideration had been given to them.

The officers were subsequently reinstated, and were permitted to take oath in a form acceptable to Christians.

AUSTRALIA REALIZES WAR AS CASUALTY LIST APPEARS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Melbourne, Australia, May 29.—Publication of casualty lists has given an impetus throughout Australia. This only in the fighting at the Dardanelles particularly has introduced a new factor into the Australian view of the war and the Defense Department finds that volunteers have been increased by a most desirable class. The Government continues, however, to do little to persuade men to join. This course is partially dictated by the fact that it cannot supply arms or munitions as fast as it would like to.

The difficulty lies chiefly in the lack of skilled labor at the Federal small arms factory at Lithgow in New South Wales, whence come all the Commonwealth's rifles, and the fact that the hands now employed do not work more than the strictly regulation union hours.

HOW PROHIBITION TOWNS GOT BIG "BOOZE" SHIPMENTS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Mandan, N. D., June 28.—Over 15,000 cases, over and 3,000 barrels of liquor including alcohol, brandy and whiskey were shipped in four months into Linton, Strasburg and The Hague, three towns of Emmons county which in its entirety, has a population of less than 12,000, according to information which Assistant Attorney General Francis J. Murphy of North Dakota today alleges he has.

"Enough," shouted Murphy. "Immediately he and other attaches started proceedings to stop the importation of booze into this prohibition state, by prohibiting railroads entering the state from accepting it as a shipment. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Soo Line have thus far been enjoined.

UNIVERSITY REGENTS HAVE LITTLE POWER

Testimony of Four Men in a Position to Know Bears Out This Statement—Van Hise Rules Institution.

Milton Junction, June 28.—Miss Pearl Ramsdale was united in marriage to Charles W. Van Schenck of Walworth at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsdale, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Rev. H. N. Jordan occupied the pulpit at Harvard Sunday.

gent Jones, Wausau, said: "It is narrowing in its effect. It does not take the whole state into consideration. We are expected to work for the university and do that under a great many difficulties. Yet if we express a little doubt, regard to some particular thing, very soon afterward articles appear in the N. Y. Post, Collier's or some other periodical criticizing us in an unfair and unjust manner. For this reason while we may have the authority we are a little timid about using it. Take my own case, I'm supposed to be a red hot progressive and yet I find that I'm heavily throughout the land as a Tory member. The regents do not charge that the university sends them articles out, but I notice that no steps are ever taken to correct misstatements. As far as the work of the regents is concerned—well we have to work on facts presented to us by the president."

As a matter of fact it is common knowledge here at the capitol that President Van Hise and his associates on the faculty are the real managers of the institution. For instance it is known that the recent budget was not revised and retitled before the session was over. It is known that statements by former Business Manager Bumpus were given wide circulation and although the chairman of the executive committee of the regents asked for a correction no such correction has appeared. It is known that President Van Hise estimated that the recent survey cost the university $27,000, and yet there was nothing to show this in the accounts.

WAR SCENES NO MORE
MATTER OF CURIOSITY
IN BIG FRENCH TOWNS.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, June 29.—While there may be no diminution of patriotic sentiment as the war drags on, military spectacles have become an old story. A train of wounded from Thionville, Bismarckweilerkopf and Dononmarie, passing through the Franche-Comte, were other day, accumulated offerings of funds sent at every station until when it arrived at Bourg-en-Bresse, the soldiers' coat was garnished, and the racks and windows of every car were filled with field flowers and daisies. The roofs of the cars had disappeared under green foliage, and the train looked like a traveling flower show.

Some curious scientific facts about Summer Heat.

By C. S. Brahma, of the Columbia University Observatory Staff.

Those who are adventurous enough to arise before sunrise may witness a rather fine spectacle if they will do so on the morning of July 18. Just before the dawn—it, of course, the weather be clear—they will be rewarded by a view of three planets in the sky—Jupiter, Venus and Mercury.

NOT FOR MEN ONLY.

Foley Cathartic Tablets are not as insistently demanded by women as by men because this particular cathartic is not so well known among women. Women suffer as much as men do from indigestion and constipation, and they also require this scientific remedy to keep the stomach sweet, the liver active and the bowels regular. Foley Cathartic Tablets are wholesome and thorough cleansing; do not gripe or cause cramps. Stout people say this is the one cathartic that takes away that over-full and clogged-up feeling. W. T. Sherer.

sun. It is interesting to note that the astrologers used to believe that fame and wealth were destined to come to one born under Aries.

To the east of Corona is the large but medium bright group of Hercules and a little farther east is the bright star of the northern heavens, Vega, of the constellation Lyra, the Harp of Orpheus. Of all the stars visible in our latitudes the star Vega is the southern heaven alone surpasses Vega in magnitude and beauty.

The next brightest star in this group is of variable intensity, and just to the east of this star is the famous Ring Nebula in Lyra, invisible to the naked eye but a good object for small telescope. Still farther to the east the star Sirus, of the Milky Way, which is said to be split up into two streams. The very bright star Altair, which can be easily found by means of the accompanying star map, is chiefly interesting because it is one of the nearest of the bright stars and is also rapidly approaching the earth.

Summer Heat.

Have you ever seriously asked yourself this question: Why is summer hotter than winter? The answer that may come to one's mind first is that perhaps the earth is nearer to the sun at this time of year than at other and that when it is approaching the sun the daily temperature goes up.

Actually the reverse is true, for on July 5 of this year the earth will be at the point in its orbit, called aphelion, the point at which it is as far away from the sun as it can get in its annual orbit. While it is true that the earth as a whole receives a little more heat at perihelion (that is, when the earth's orbit of nearest approach to the sun), that occurs in January, and in any case the difference in heat and light energy received from the sun at aphelion and perihelion has no marked influence on the seasons of the northern and southern hemispheres.

The correct explanation is to be found in the position of the sun in the sky. If the sun's apparent path (apparent because, of course, it is the earth that does the moving) were to be such as to bring the sun higher up in the sky at one time of the year than at another, average temperatures would remain the same for all parts of the year in any one location. Due, however, to the fact that the earth's axis of rotation, or polar axis, is at an angle with the plane of the sun's apparent orbit, the sun does change its greatest altitude, or meridian, at noon considerably—by about 41 degrees.

At the height of summer the sun is above the horizon as it is on the midsummer day, June 21, is roughly three times as great as it is on the northern midwinter day, Dec. 21, for the latitude of New York.

Now, then, the effect of this increased altitude is twofold: First, the day is longer in summer than in winter—in summer the period of daylight lasts longer than that of darkness, and therefore the sun's rays play longer on the earth to warm it up. Second, the sun being higher up, the earth receives more rays from the sun than it does in winter. The brightest of the Corona stars is called Gemma. It has been found by astronomers to be receding from the earth at a rate of twenty miles per second. To the west lies the Bear Driver, Bootes, with the very bright star Arcturus, rich in mythological and scientific interest. Arcturus is one of the most rapidly moving stars in the heavens and is now moving away from the position it had in the time of the ancient Greek astronomers. It is of a slightly reddish hue and probably several hundred times as bright as our own the rays fall more directly and the light is not spread over so much space. To make the latter point quite clear, imagine out of the sun's space. Too Hotter Days.

From the above it may appear that the hottest days of the summer should come about June 21, and yet we know that really they come toward the end of July or the beginning of August. To understand this, we must remember that during the day the earth is receiving and storing heat energy and at night radiating energy out into space, as any warm body will. Whether the earth is cooling or warming up will depend on the relation between these two.

Now, on March 21 daylight and darkness last about equal intervals, but after that the period of daylight is constantly increasing at the expense of the night; therefore the earth has more time to receive heat in than time in which it is radiating and therefore warms up, with progressively increasing amounts until about June 21, when the longest daylight period occurs. After that the days are still longer than the nights, though in decreasing amounts, and so the earth continues to warm further.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ANNIVERSARY CLOSED AT WHITEWATER YESTERDAY

Whitewater, June 29.—Last evening closed a three days' session of services in recognition of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Congregational Church of Whitewater. The church was organized first on June 3, 1840, as the First Presbyterian Church of Whitewater. This organization took place at the log house of Deacon Prosper Gravath, located southwest of the present city of Whitewater. In 1845 the Congregational form of church government was adopted. Since that time four church buildings have been erected: the "Old Frame" in 1840; the "Old Brick" church in 1850, the church that was burned in 1881, and the present building in 1881. A list of twenty-two pastors is given in the program with the years in which they served the church. The list begins with Rev. Daniel Smith, 1840-1841, and ends with Rev. L. R. Howard, who was installed as pastor of the church Monday afternoon. Mr. Howard has been here the past year.

The exercises opened Saturday morning at 10:30 with a Union Sunday school parade. The day was ideal and the large number of floats and autos made the impression that the Whitewater Sunday schools were very prosperous. The line of march was from the Congregational church to the postoffice, and then to the city park. The parade was led by the band and the boy scouts. On arrival at the park a short program was given. Rev. L. R. Howard gave a greeting from the Congregationalists; Editor F. R. Blodgett, superintendent of the M. E. Sunday school, gave a few remarks, and the Rev. F. T. Lee, D.D., gave a short address. A basket picnic followed. At four o'clock an informal reunion was held at the church, his included a musical by former musicians. Among them were Mrs. Jessie Williams Peacock of Lake Geneva and Mrs. Lillian Mereness Pollard and daughter, Mildred Mereness of Beloit.

T. M. Blackman gave the address of welcome, with a response by C. C. Birge. In the evening there was a historical meeting. Mrs. Albert Salisbury and Rev. E. C. Barnard were the two speakers. Letters were read from absent members and old time pictures were shown on the screen.

Sunday's program occupied nearly the whole day, and each meeting was largely attended. Rev. Robert Hopkins gave the sermon of the morning on "The Church That Is to Conquer."

The Sunday school session was unusually interesting, with reminiscences of the Sunday school by former workers. At 4:30 there was communion service, and at 8 o'clock a union service was held. Rev. T. M. Shepherd of Milwaukee gave the address on "The Task of a Democratic Church." This service was much delayed on account of the late train bringing the speaker.

Monday morning the meeting was to consider the women's work in the church. Mrs. F. V. Stevens presided at this meeting. Mrs. E. T. Cass spoke on "Former Women Workers"; Mr. O. Kinsman on the Ladies' Union; and Mrs. D. S. Cook on "The Pastors' Wives." At 1:30 there was a meeting of the Beloit association, followed at 2 o'clock with the installation service, when Rev. L. R. Howard was installed as pastor of the church. A. E. Matheson of Janesville gave the charge to the people, and President E. D. Eaton, D.D., gave the charge to the pastor.

At 8:30 p. m. nearly 200 sat down to a banquet given in the parlor of the M. E. church. Rev. W. L. Lewis acted as toastmaster, and the following responded to toasts:
